Slats' Diary

(By Rosa Farquhar.)

Friday—I always like Fridays cause then I know I don't have to go to school for 2 more days. The only trouble is that after Friday comes Saturday and that is the day when I had to take a bath. It wouldn't be so bad to take a bath if you knew you had accomplished something but how many you take there is just that many more to take.

Saturday—Pa took me & Jake to the Ft. Ball game this p. m. and after watching 2 college teams play we have decided we haven't been playing Ft. Ball at all but some other game. Pa has always claimed that he used to play Ft. Ball but still he couldn't tell me what the college boys was talking about when they all get around in a circle before they run with the ball.

Sunday—I seen Jane at Church today so I sat her wud she go with me to Sallie Meersa party. Tuesday I told her she didn't have no other way to go so she guessed she mite as well. I guess she kinda likes me after all the mean things she says about me.

Monday—In school today Miss Smook sed to me there is only 2 dum boys in this class and you are both of them. I felt like telling her she ain't seen nothing yet, wate till she has bin around Ant Emmy for a while then she mite change her mind.

Tuesday—Went down town this p. m. after school and bought myself a new pair of shoes to wear to the party toshite, when me and Jane was dancing together they started to hirt me and I sed Gosh, These new shoes hirt my ft. and she sed mink to.

Wednesday—Pa was talking to Mister Gillem over the back fence tonite and was telling him how good he was getting. Pa sed he was getting better and better every day. Mister Gillem sed Yes what did you make on the 2nd hole. I gess Pa will keep his gawt to himself after this.

Thursday—Today in school we was having sum questions on the Bible. Miss Smook sed Jake who was all powerf & Jake sed Calvin Goodie was. Miss Smook sed no Jake the Lord is all powerf. Jake tole me later that he always did think she was a democrat and now he was sure of it. Ant Emmy says she doesn't think she will vote this yr. as she cud never see the sense of telling a strange man yure age.

TICKETS ON SALE FOR MACON'S OPERA

Macon, Ga., Dec. 10. — Macon's grand opera season was assured of success when the tickets for the season went on sale at the Williams-Breedlove Music Company Saturday morning and large numbers made their purchase of season tickets for the opera season January 7-12.

The enthusiasm with which Macon's opera season is being anticipated is not confined to the persons well versed in music, but to everyone who has learned to enjoy opera through hearing it. The public schools and colleges will take a prominent part in opera week with special trains being run from the colleges in Middle Georgia to operas selected by the students.

The department of music appreciation in the public schools and the Saturday morning matinees at the Rialto Theater are teaching opera numbers from the program to be Wednesday matinee will be Plotow's Marthe in which is the immortal song "Last Rose of Summer." Special prices will be made on this day for school children.

Season tickets may be purchased by mail from now until December 18, when the single seat sale will begin.

The program for the season will included as the opening performance Rigoletto, in which Tina Paggi, coloratura soprano, will take the lead. Miss Paggi was heard here last year and made the outstanding success of the season.

A new singer, and one who is considered as one of the most beautiful singers in opera, will be Bianca Beova. She has sung with Marcellini and Gigli, famous tenors who have heard each year with the Metropolitan Opera Company. For the past year she has been singing in Europe.

R. L. McKimney, president of the Macon Grand Opera Association, said that the prospects for the 1929 season were unusually great.

SWEET POTATO VINES USED AS HUMAN FOOD

Experiment, Ga., Nov. 24.—As a result of research work along dietary lines it is announced by the Georgia Experiment Station that the tips of sweet potato vines can be made into an appetizing human food. Investigations on which the announcement is made were conducted by Miss Leah Ascham of the Department of Home Economics, who says: "It was suggested that the tips of sweet potato vines might have food possibilities and might be especially valuable for iron, one of the elements so vital to good nutrition and yet very apt to be low in dietaries."

The chemistry department of the Georgia Experiment Station at Experiment, Ga., found that the iron content of potato vines was 0.0053%, much higher than that of the much lauded spinach.

"It was found also that the vines can be prepared in very appetizing ways as they have no distinctive unpleasant flavor, and, hence, can be used in various combinations which is quite a nutritional advantage."

"If one wishes to prepare them as greens, meat flavor or vinegar can be used. After parboiling they combine splendidly with eggs, tomatoes, onions and white sauce, or with meat, tomatoes and onions in a casserole, or they can be made into a tasty puree. Suggested proportions for one of these combinations is as follows:

"½ can of tomatoes (strained), eggs, 1 cup finely chopped, cooked potato vine tips, 1 onion, 1 small green pepper, 1 cup medium white sauce."

"Mix, put into casserole, cover with buttered crumbs and bake one-half hour in a moderate oven."

"Since there is such great need for iron in the diet of children, preparation of the above type could be used, as well as many others that the ingenious housewife could devise once she recognizes the excellent food value of the tips."

The utilities of a city are combined
in your motor car

YOUR automobile is something like a miniature city. There is an electric light and power system, a water system, a fuel system.

In the new Ford, you will find each of these systems of the latest design and best materials. Every part has been made to serve you faithfully and well at a minimum of trouble and expense.

Take, for example, the generator—one of the most important parts of the electrical system which supplies the current for lighting and for engine ignition.

In the new Ford, the generator is of the power-house type and is distinctive in many features. It has been specially designed to prevent most forms of trouble. Oiling is necessary only once a year. About the only thing you need do is to have the charging rate changed as the seasons change.

Closely allied to the electrical system is the ignition system. It, too, is of new mechanical design in the new Ford. There is but one high tension cable and that connects the coil with the distributor. Even cables from the distributor to the spark plugs have been eliminated. Special care has also been taken to make the distributor water-proof, thus preventing short circuits from rain, etc.

The entire electrical and ignition systems of the new Ford are so simple in design and so carefully made that they will give you surprisingly little trouble. Yet that doesn't mean they should be neglected. Certain little attentions are needed from time to time.

The storage battery should be given water and the connections kept clean. The generator charging rate should be changed as indicated. Spark plugs should be cleaned at regular intervals. Distributor points should also be kept clean and the distributor cap given a light film of vaseline every 2000 miles.

These are just little things, but they mean a great deal to your car. You can have them looked after at very small cost by the Ford dealer when you take the car in for oiling and greasing.

A thorough checking-up at regular intervals will lengthen the life of your car and give you many thousands of miles of carefree, economical motoring.

BY-PRODUCTS OF RICE
PRODUCE BEST LARD

Experiment, Ga., Nov. 27. — Rice by-products, including rice bran, rice polish and brewers' rice, can be used in advantage in feeding swine, according to F. R. Edwards, in charge of Animal Husbandry at the Georgia Experiment Station, who says:

"They are valuable feeds for live-stock and are abundant and low in price in certain sections of the south. Experiments have shown that rice bran and rice polish produce soft pork when fed in considerable amounts to swine. However, these feeds are an excellent hog feed in other respects and produce satisfactory gains in weight. Their softening effect is due to their high oil content. They contain about 7.5 per cent digestible oil, chemical analyses showing that the total content of oil varies from 9 to over 11 per cent. Several research institutions, including the Georgia Experiment Station, have been studying these and other feeds that produce soft pork and methods are being gradually worked out whereby they can be utilized more effectively for hog feeding."

"Soft pork which these feeds produce is not generally esteemed equal to firm pork on the market. For this reason it is often necessary to sell it at a very low price as compared to firm pork."

"Fortunately, it has been shown by the Georgia Experiment Station and by other institutions that another rice by-product, brewers' rice, produces exceptionally hard pork. Methods have now been worked out by these co-operating institutions where by the farmer can profitably feed these softening and hardening feeds so as to produce firm pork."

"In the experiments reported here pigs weighing from 50 to 114 pounds were fed rice bran as the basal feed for 8 weeks, making gains of a pound or less per head daily. The basal feed was then changed from rice bran to brewers' rice and they were fed for 8 weeks longer, making an average daily gain of about 2 pounds per head. The carcasses of these pigs were of satisfactory firmness as a rule."

"In other feeding tests it was found that when heavier pigs, weighing 115 pounds or more at the start, were fed on rice bran or rice polish for 8 weeks and then on brewers' rice for 8 weeks the pork produced was of satisfactory firmness. In order for this to be so, it was necessary that the gains made during the last 8 weeks period be equal to or greater than those made during the first 8 weeks. When corn is used instead of brewers' rice during the latter 8 weeks it was found that the carcasses were of moderate firmness, not being as hard as when produced by brewers' rice. The firming effect of corn also depends on the gains in weight being equally as good, or better, in the second period as in the first."

"The Georgia Experiment Station recommends that, in feeding these rice by-products, a mineral mixture and either digested tankage or fish meal, be given as supplementary feeds. Rice feeds are not a balanced diet for pigs and will not usually produce profitable gains to weight unless other feeds are given."

IN MEMORIAM

Little William Raymond Pollard, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Howard and son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Pollard, died December 15th at six o'clock. His play hours having come to an end, the Lord took him to a sweet home of rest forever. He is survived by his mother and father, a brother, Wilbert, and a little sister, Irma Lou.

Dear little Raymond, you're gone, Oh, how we miss you, dear! Your face no more we can see, Your voice no more we can hear. Our lips cannot tell how we miss you, No one can tell what to say. But God only knows we love you As we did when you went away. Only God knew why you should leave Leave from your mother and dad, But they still hold you in memory As their sweet little darling lad. Peaceful be your sleep, dear Raymond.

"Tis sweet to breathe your name; We loved you very dear in life, In death we do the same.

Chinese Divorce Customs

In China it is not possible for a woman to secure a divorce from her husband. A man can divorce his wife for any of nine causes. Divorce by mutual consent is possible. If a wife has married her husband's parents for three years or if the husband was poor at the time of marriage and has since grown rich, the husband may not divorce his wife except in the case of infidelity.

Fourth Grade News.

We have been working hard this week arranging a beautiful Christmas border and making new posters. We are all anxious to get on our honor roll this month. We now have an enrollment of 35.

We are having some very interesting lessons in health. We are studying First Aid Helps and doctors are elected each day to go and examine the patients and give remedies for their ailments. A few more days will find us master of these helps. We are working on our Christmas decorations every day. Our enrollment now totals 49.

Seventh Grade News.

We are studying the poem, "Lochinavar," by Scott this week and every one is very interested. We have committed this poem to memory and are now working on our debates on the following question: "Was Lochinavar's conduct right or wrong?" We are anticipating heated argument on both sides of this question. We now have fifty enrolled in the seventh and eighth grades.

High School News.

The boys' basketball team defeated the Ogeechee five in a fast game on Ogeechee's court last Wednesday afternoon by a score of 10 to 4. The high point man for Warnock was Dean Rushing, followed closely by Prosser, running guard.

A fish fry sponsored by Mr. Olliff and Mr. Martin, at Kennedy's pond, for the boys' team on Friday evening of last week proved very successful. Several outings of this kind will doubtless be had by that party during the school term.

Our enrollment is still increasing with each week. Each Monday finds new students entering. We are glad, however, that they are willing to fight the adversities which such late entering brings and the teachers are anxious to show them every consideration.

The music and expression students are preparing a Christmas program and recital to be given Friday evening, Dec. 21st. Refreshments will be sold at that time under the auspices of the P. T. A.

The regular meeting of the P. T. A. was held Friday afternoon. An interesting program was rendered.

On Wednesday afternoon, December 5th, Portal P. T. A. held its regular monthly meeting. We have a few new members each time and our old members are showing so much interest in the P. T. A. work. This meeting was devoted entirely to business. A bazaar was planned to be given the latter part of this week. We are also sponsoring a play to be given before Christmas holidays. A prize is being offered each month for the grade having the most mothers present, which is creating some interest in our P. T. A. The third grade won the prize this last month.

Last Friday the Portal basketball boys played Sylvania on the Portal court. Portal defeated Sylvania by a score of 25-13, and the girls played a game with Warnock. Portal defeating Warnock by a score of 17-2. Both were interesting games.

And Now We Know!

WHY the rapid growth of Chiropractic as a profession? Why has this idea spread from the mind of one man to millions in the short period of 33 years? Why has the number of practicing Doctors of Chiropractic grown from a handful to over 20,000, and the number who have taken Chiropractic to approximately 26 million? Why this progress in spite of the persecution, prosecution, and prejudice which have been the fruit of every new idea from the "foolish" idea of Fulton's first steamboat to the "ridiculous" idea of Orville Wright's first airplane?

There can only be one answer! Results. Better results from newer methods of utilizing the natural health forces within the body.

This now leads us to facts and figures. To what extent has this change taken place? Rather than speak of generalities or theories, or merely state opinions,—what have these results really been? What do progressive people who have trusted their health problems to the skilled hands of Doctors of Chiropractic really think? What a splendid idea to get the opinion of patients rather than theories of those uninformed. With this in mind the Del-Mar-Va Chiropractic Association mailed over 5,000 questionnaires to people on our own Eastern Shore.

With sincere interest and anxiety the Chiropractors of this association awaited the compiling of these statistics.

And Now They Shall be Told

To the question, "Have you taken Chiropractic adjustments?" 11 per cent answered NO—89 per cent YES.
To the question, "Were you benefited?" (Summary from those who had taken Chiropractic adjustments.) 5 per cent answered NO—95 per cent YES.
To the question, "Was the improvement slight, fair or great?" 6 per cent answered slight, 40 per cent fair, and 49 per cent great.

To the question, "Have you recommended others to take Chiropractic adjustments?" 7 per cent answered NO and 93 per cent answered YES.

The outstanding evidence of these figures, compiled voluntarily by people on the Del-Mar-Va peninsula, say more than volumes of words, theories or opinions. It is with pleasure that they are opened to the public view, not in a spirit of egotism or self satisfaction; but as the naked truth humbly told, —and with the hope that many may be suffering needlessly may now know more of the benefit possible by the natural health methods of Chiropractic.

HELPING THE FARMER
Any man or organization that seeks to render service to the farmer has a difficult problem at the very outset.

The average farmer is ready to admit that he needs help, but it is not always easy for him to decide the exact shape in which he needs it. That is the problem, then, that must be solved by those who seek to help.

What help shall be given, and how? Having reached a decision, then, there is the problem of getting that help before the man whom it is intended to help.

It is a common saying that "You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink." But you can't even lead a farmer to help, unless you can convince him that he needs it.

This brings us to the point we wish to emphasize: On last Friday there was staged in Statesboro, primarily for the benefit of the agricultural interests of this community, a demonstration under the auspices of the Georgia & Florida Railroad in co-operation with the county agent of this county.

The program for the demonstration had been for two weeks advertised in these columns. The subjects to be discussed were recognized to be of vital importance to agriculture in this community. The use of farm machinery and the selection and handling of livestock were the chief topics. Actual demonstrations were advertised for the afternoon at the Georgia Normal School.

The railroad agricultural crew came here at considerable expense and their messages were intended to be helpful and absolutely without cost. Not one farmer attended the meeting at the Normal School in the afternoon.

In the evening the program called for moving picture scenes depicting the dairy industry and potato culture. Splendid pictures were brought to assist the farmer in better understanding of some of the things he must know to best succeed in these lines. It had cost the railroad something to bring these illustrations and to show them.

The meeting was scheduled for 7:30 in the court house. At that hour there were present the four members of the railroad organization, one agriculturist from another railroad, the county agent and six people from Statesboro as spectators. Of these six persons, two were merchants, a newspaper man, one a wood dealer and two were more or less directly interested in agriculture.

Whose fault was it that this energy was wasted? Not the railroad, for they had done their part well. Not the newspaper, for the occasion had been fully advertised. What shall be said about the farmer who is not interested in learning things that are brought to his very door for his information and benefit? Was he without fault?

How does the farmer want to be helped in these lines? That is the difficult problem for the organization or individual who would help.

WORTH THE COST
When Thomas Fortune Ryan died recently he left a son, Allan Ryan, with a set of pearl shirt studs as his part of $200,000,000 estate.

The father and son had become estranged when the father married again twelve days after the death of the younger man's mother and the younger man told the father some of the things that he thought about the fitness of it.

Allan Ryan's loss by this piece of his mind is said to have been around $50,000,000. We don't know if he said to his father, but if it made the old man so mad as that, we believe whatever he said was worth it.

$50,000,000. Men who are so indifferent to the properties of life ought to have things told them. A man who does not respect the memory of a dead wife sufficiently to make a pretense of sorrow for a longer time than twelve days, ought to be told $50,000,000 worth of truth.

A few words bluntly put could be easily worth that if they told the truth. An expression no longer than the average telegram could be worth $50,000,000 per word if it told the truth. We imagine that was about the length of the expression of sentiment young Ryan conveyed to his father when he married.

Now that the old man has gone hence, he may be forgiven; but his example to society was bad. The example of the son is to be commended. He is seeking to set aside the will which disinherited him. We hope he may succeed. Anyway, the brothers and sisters who were the beneficiaries under the will ought to show their appreciation of the sentiment which he conveyed to the old gentleman, and if they do it properly, they will give him an equal share of the estate.

AT ODDS WITH THE WORLD
That individual who finds pleasure in habitual hostility with his or her neighbors is a social misfit.

Almost every town has them—men and women who are arrayed against their neighbors; who believe their neighbors are seeking to do them harm; that they are being insulted or slighted for no cause except the innate perverseness of their neighbors.

We are not going to mention any names, but we have some in mind. You have in mind some of the same kind. Your neighbor also has in mind such a person. You are thinking it's your neighbor—he may be thinking it's you. Yet there are outstanding characters of that kind that are an eyesore to a community.

Persons who imagine they are being imposed upon even when things are being undertaken which inure to their own good.

GIANT MONOPLANE FOR TRANS-OCEANIC FLIGHTS
Atlanta, Dec. 10.—A giant 500-horsepower monoplane of over 2,000 horsepower for tentative trans-oceanic service is announced under construction by the Junkers airplane company in Germany, according to advices received here today at the Candler flying field.

Besides its great size several other special features, the report says, are announced in the new plane, which is known as the "Flying Wings," and technically termed "Type J 38" by the Junkers company.

In this monoplane the passenger quarters are in the wings, which are over six feet thick and 120 feet long. The cabin quarters, which are divided into smoking and non-smoking sections, are themselves 75 feet long. They contain convertible seats and berths.

The wings also contain the plane's four 550-horsepower motors, for repair or attention while in flight. Each wing holds two of the motors, which are the "L 55" type, formerly water-cooled, but now being adapted to air-cooling.

The plan will also have a well-equipped kitchen and a superheated air.

By means of a special compressor device it is said the new plane can fly at also 20,000 feet with hardly any loss of power, it is claimed.

However, the company has announced its intention of trying to increase its ceiling to over 32,000 feet. If tests at the new ceiling prove successful trans-oceanic passenger service will be carried out, it is asserted.

Why Farm Incomes Vary

At first we got it consolidated.
Then for results we all awaited.
We found it wouldn't work—I guess
the house was small.
But anyway for some reason it would not work at all.

When the prospect of a school we began to see.
We voted bonds almost unanimously.
Then we all got together to build it best for less.

And we found Mr. Proctor could build it best.
Then on the site for it we discussed about.
And I guess we all acted like a case of goat.

So we turned it over to the board of education.
And they got together and decided on the location.

Mr. Proctor started with his eyes and teeth.
But we couldn't move it till December the fifteenth.

When we got in another house the school began to walk.
And some long-tongued people came out and made a talk.

So it began to move rather slowly at first.
But now all around its name comes first.

They have finished our building now which is the color of cream.
And to think our building is finished is most like a dream.

Analysis of the records of 175 farms for the three years, 1925 to 1927, by the Illinois College of Agriculture revealed that the 35 most profitable farms had net earnings of approximately $3,000 annually more than the earnings of the 35 least profitable.
The farms in the least profitable group averaged 24 acres compared with 246 for the others, but the investment per acre was practically the same.

Among the factors responsible for the variations in earnings, the most important was crop yields, which caused $331 of the average annual difference between the 35 most profitable and the 35 least profitable farms.
The other factors and the difference in earnings attributable to them were:
amount of live stock, $897; efficiency of live stock, $557; kind of crops, $304; prices received for grain, $250;
cost of power and machinery, $219;
cost of man labor, $49; and other expenses, $28.

On the 35 most profitable farms the average yields of grain per acre were about 19 per cent higher than on the 35 least profitable farms. The use of high-yielding, adapted varieties of seed, testing for germination and freedom from disease, the rotation of crops, the growing of legumes, the feeding of crops to live stock and conserving manure, and the use of such materials as limestone and rock phosphate, are the principal steps to high yields.
Some of these farmers made as much as $200 a year more than others merely through the use of high-yielding varieties of seed.

Farmers who disposed of a larger proportion of their crops through live stock had larger net incomes than those who sold most of their grain.
On the 35 most profitable farms, the productive live stock returned $163 for every $100 worth of feed used, while on the least profitable, it returned only $125. As an average of all the farms, live stock returned $151 for each $100 worth of feed.

Sanitation, disease control, the use of legume pastures, the purchase of high protein supplements to balance home-grown feeds, good breeding stock and producing so as to take advantage of seasonal fluctuations in prices were the chief factors in efficient live stock production.

The most successful farmers increased their incomes $304 a year by having a high percentage of the til-lable land in crops producing higher profits, such as corn, wheat, alfalfa, and a smaller share in low profit crops such as oats and timothy hay.
They received $280 more because they obtained higher prices for their grain.
They marketed when prices were good and sold grain of better quality.

The 35 most profitable farmers spent $210 less per year per farm for power and machinery than the least profitable group. The labor cost was $40 less, and other expenses, $25 less. It is significant that the most profitable farms got their higher incomes with a smaller power and machinery cost and with less labor expenditure per acre than on the least profitable farms.

Many of the measures taken by successful farmers to increase their incomes can be applied as easily by farmers in meager circumstances as by those who are prosperous, the Foundation adds. Through them, such farmers can eventually join the successful group.

New Markets for Cotton

King Cotton has greatly extended his dominions in the industrial field in recent years and his accounts are constantly looking for new regions to conquer, says the Sears-Robuck Agricultural Foundation. The fiber has thousands of uses and more are being discovered every year. These new uses and the extension of old uses have maintained or increased per capita consumption of cotton in spite of the reduced dimensions of women's dresses and competition from other textiles.

Formerly, cotton was used almost entirely for clothing, but other uses are taking an increasing share of the crop. Among the many industrial outlets are automobile tires, auto bodies, cotton bagging and baling, airplane cloths, rubber goods, artificial leather, awnings, wall coverings, traffic markings, power belting, electrical insulators, cleavage and binder cloths in road construction, gears, truck wheels, and other machinery parts.

Tire production in the United States requires about 200,000 bales of cotton annually. In 1927, 210,000 pounds of cotton fabrics were used in tire production, according to the Rubber Association of America. Cotton is used also by the auto industry for upholstery, tops, curtains, carpets, tire covers, padding, linings, electrical insulation, rubber tubing, and brake bands. All these uses were relatively unimportant twenty years ago.

Cotton bales used in the wholesale grocery trade for sugar, flour, salt, coffee, potatoes, and similar commodities require about 200,000 bales of raw cotton and waste every year. The cement industry consumes cotton bags equivalent to about 45,000 bales, the bakery trade, 20,000 bales, and the fertilizer industry, 4,000 bales. Bags for handling coal, mail and money also take small amounts. It is estimated that if cotton bags were used for packaging all commodities to which they are adapted in the wholesale grocery trade alone, about 600,000 bales of raw cotton and waste would be required annually.

If cotton cloth were used as a bale covering on 60 per cent of the average cotton crop, about 130,000 bales would be required for bagging. It is estimated that the withdrawal of this amount, chiefly of low grades, from the supply would raise the seasonal average price of cotton by about 14 cent a pound, or $125 a bale. This would be about enough to pay for the covering, so that producers in the aggregate would, in effect, get their bagging without cost. Tests have shown that cotton has advantages over jute bagging through making a neater package, reducing dead weight and lessening waste in removing from the bale, but jute coverings cost less except in years of extremely low cotton prices. Attempts are being made to produce a light cotton bagging that can be sold in competition with jute.

Cotton textiles are more extensively used in aviation than any other fabric and this use is growing rapidly. Its lightness, strength, durability under vibration, ease of repair and low cost make it the best textile for this purpose. The vast majority of the cotton used in aircraft is of the high grade, and of the 100,000 square yards of cotton used in the 100 gas cells, 60,000 square yards were used in the 100 gas cells.

Cotton manufacturers have found it possible to increase the popularity of cotton clothing through more attention to design, harmonizing patterns with style tendencies, faster colors and using competitive fibers with cotton. As a result of these efforts, cotton dresses are in greater vogue at present than for several years.

The use of 300-inch hosiery rather than the 90-inch length sometimes sold is a means of extending the use of cotton in an old and standard product, and, again, an additional outlet for 200,000 yards of cotton fabric a year. A recent campaign to increase the use of their product and estimate the possible gain in their market at 25,000,000 square yards annually. The use of cotton traffic markers in place of paint on city streets is estimated to require 5,000,000 square yards of cotton fabric a year. Cloth to make a drainage plane in cement roads will take about 5,000,000 square yards this year and its use as a binder in asphalt surface on ordinary roads opens up an immense market. Every mile of such road would use a minimum of 3,500 square yards of fabric.

The United States Department of Agriculture, the Department of Commerce, and the Cotton Textile Institute are co-operating in a survey of the utilization of cotton, trying to find in what industries it is used and where its use can be extended. They have found cotton being used in 150 different ways on the farm, aside from the household. Household uses aside from clothing, number over 100. Railroads use cotton in over 40 different ways. Building trades make considerable use of cotton. Modern steamboats use much more cotton than sailing vessels.

The development of new uses and the extension of old uses are essential to sustained progress of the cotton industry from the standpoint of both cotton producers and manufacturers, the Foundation asserts. Efforts in this direction deserve warm support.

MATTERS OF INTEREST AT GEORGIA NORMAL

MANY ACTIVITIES DURING THE WEEK - GOING AND COMING OF STUDENT BODY.

The annual football banquet was held in the main dining hall December 13th. Never has such a festive event been witnessed at the Georgia Normal. The whole affair was one of bright colors and gay conversation. A delicious four-course dinner was served by Mrs. Fullilove. After the dinner an impromptu program was given. Delmas Rushing, 1928 football captain, acted as toastmaster and presided in fitting fashion. Various girls and boys and members of the faculty were called upon for toasts. President Wells gave a short talk, followed by a talk by Coach Woodie. Coach Barnes reviewed the football season, and B. R. Olliff, superintendent of schools in Bulloch county, made some closing remarks. Vernon Cail was elected captain for 1929 and Frances Mathis alternate captain.

The Y. W. C. A. held a Christmas bazaar on Friday afternoon. Fancy work as dainty Christmas gifts were on sale. A sandwich course was served.

Miss Lila Blitch, chairman of the annual Christmas seal drive for this county, made a talk in chapel Thursday.

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES

Most of our farmers are beginning to wake up to the fact that practically all cotton seed grown in this county are unfit for planting. However, it is not a bad idea to keep reminding them that it is necessary that they secure their supply of planting seed as early as possible. Farmers in other sections who were more fortunate than we as to seasons, know that we have got to buy seed and they are taking advantage of the situation by forcing the price of planting seed up. The best seed will soon be exhausted, so my advice to farmers is to secure your supply now. It may be interesting to some to know that I had a number of samples of the seed tested for germination and that the highest germination test was 65%, and they ran as low as 13%. And another thing: beware of the seed bootleggers, who are going to be covering the county palming off any kind of seed on farmers. They are trying to make a few dollars sure that you are getting good seed.

Armour and Company, who have bought the Dublin creamery, have opened a cream station in Statesboro at the City Dairy. Cash will be paid for sour cream when delivered. This is a good opportunity for our farmers who have two or three cows milking to derive some cash from them. At this time of year cream can be kept and delivered once a week. We will need to use every means to bring in a little cash during these trying times, and this is one of the ways. This is destined to become a dairy country, and the sooner we realize it and get lined up, the better it will be for us.

Why not let's get busy and raise a few spring broilers to load a car these trying times? You can buy your baby chicks, or have your own eggs hatched, so as to start in January. You can get started without much outlay of cash, and there is really money in growing out broilers if it is done at right. Call on your county agent for information if you are in need of poultry. It is just one other source of income, which is needed so badly at present.

E. P. JOSEY, County Agent.

The thermostat is a new device which gives warning by ringing a bell when a motor to which it is attached becomes overheated.

INTERESTING PROGRAM AT CLIPONREKA SCHOOL HOUSE

The completion of the new Cliponreka school building and its acceptance for occupancy was marked by an interesting program in the auditorium of that splendid building last Friday evening.

The hour for the opening of the exercises was 7:30 o'clock. Long before that hour the building was completely filled, and the people continued to come till there was not standing room inside the auditorium.

Miss Earl Woods, the principal of the school, was in charge of making the program. J. E. McCroan presided as he requested and introduced the features, which consisted of a humorous skit, musical numbers and short talks. The musical numbers were by Misses Lilla and Charlotte Baumann of Statesboro; by the Misses Barnes, also of Statesboro, and by a quartet of young ladies from the Normal College.

Short talks were made by B. S. Henderson, Howell Cone and B. R. Olliff. The comedy of the evening was black face by Walter McDonald and Pete Donaldson, who presented some local hits which were well received and produced many a smile.

The friends of the school were present in large numbers and many words of commendation were heard. The new building, now being occupied, is really a handsome structure. The cost was approximately $6,000, and the building was erected by S. J. Proctor of Statesboro. There are four large class rooms complete, with an auditorium across the rear with a stage sufficiently large to be used for a class room when needed. Large modern heaters have been installed in each room and the building will be lighted by a modern lighting system. The location is on the highway about six hundred yards east of the old Clito school site and is a most suitable location. Whatever difference arose during the period of construction of the three schools (Clito, Beaver Pond and Eureka) have been overcome and the neighborhood is united in its pride in the new property.

Statesboro, naturally regrets that there is any possibility of curtailing the train service in and out of the city. The resolution adopted by the Chamber of Commerce, worded as early as possible, was a mere voice in protest against the taking of the train. It was expressly stated that no open contest would be waged before the public service at the time of the hearing on the matter.

The hearing was held in Atlanta Tuesday morning of the present week. No announcement of the decision of the public service commission has yet been made. It is deemed probable that it will be several days yet before it will be known whether the train is to come off or remain on.

There will be no change in the schedule of the other train. Statesboro will simply lose the train from Dublin which passes here going to Dover at 8:50 in the morning and the afternoon train from Dover to Statesboro passing here at 5:30 if the change is permitted by the public service commission. If that train is discontinued, however, there is yet hope that the officials may make Statesboro the terminus for the train, returning here from Dover for the night.

CLIPONREKA SCHOOL HAS FORMAL HOUSE-WARMING

The Cliponreka P. T. A. feel that we met with quite a success with our entertainment on last Friday evening. It was so well attended that the auditorium was inadequate for the occasion. We wish to thank each and every one who contributed even in the smallest way to help to make this occasion a success. We feel very much encouraged by the co-operation we have received from outsiders as well as those directly interested in the school. We wish to thank very cordially those who gave of their talent to the program. The music by the Baumann sisters and the Normal girls was especially enjoyed, also the reading by Miss Mary Swain. Again we thank each and every one for any kindness shown, whether great or small. We feel that we have made a good beginning and will strive to merit the co-operation that we are sure will be given us in the future as has been in the past. The following program was rendered: Solo, Lucile Futrell; talk, Mr. Anderson; music, Lilla and Charlotte Baumann; talk, Mr. Cone; music, Normal girls; reading, Mary Swain; talk, Mr. Turner; talk, Mr. Olliff; black face, Walter McDonald; shadow play contest. Master of ceremonies, Mr. McCroan.
